Departmental Mission

Crucial to the centuries-old Ignatian vision that guided the establishment of Jesuit colleges and universities are two concepts: caring for the student as an individual (cura personalis) and imparting to the student a skill in thoughtful, imaginative, and well-organized language (eloquentia perfecta).

The English Department and its curriculum encourage the growth of our students in these traditions. Our courses guide them to appreciate imaginative literature and to master rhetorical skills traditionally associated with Jesuit education—including cultivating an individual and discerning voice in both writing and speaking.

We are committed to the University's mission by connecting faith, intellectual commitment, and social justice in our teaching. By offering service-learning and diversity courses and by developing mentoring relationships between faculty and students, we encourage a striving for the greater intellectual and social good.

The English Department supports the University mission by calling upon our students to embrace:

- An openness to imaginative, moral, and spiritual growth
- A confidence in their own intellectual reach and competence
- A commitment to being men and women with and for others
- A commitment to social justice
- A willingness and an ability to lead.

Variable Core-Art/Literature

Students who wish to satisfy the Art/Literature portion of the GEP by completing a course in English may select from the list of GEP-appropriate creative writing or literature courses at the 200-, 300-, or 400-level in the English program listing.

ENG 101 Craft of Language (3 credits)

A study of the use and power of words including poetic terms and of how words are best put together in an essay. This is mainly a writing course, and literary form will be used as a means to teach writing. The emphasis will be on expository prose. Required of all students except those qualifying for Advanced Placement.

Attributes: Undergraduate

ENG 102 Texts & Contexts (3 credits)

A course in the reading of key literary texts in both the British and American traditions. Students will examine a representative sampling of texts in detail, with guided instruction in writing personal, critical, and creative responses to them. Required of all students except those transfer students who have taken an equivalent course elsewhere.

Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111

Attributes: Signature Course, Undergraduate

ENG 113 Literature & Composition (3 credits)

Introduction to fiction, drama, and poetry with frequent theme assignments, critical in nature and coordinated with readings in major literary genres.

Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111 or ENG 112

ENG 140 Adult Learning Seminar (3 credits)
In this seminar, adult learners will study the idea of work through reading fiction and nonfiction on jobs, employment, and careers. Students will read stories about work and write narratives of work histories that will provide the context and experience for the course. In the second part of the course, students will reflect and theorize on these histories as either empowering sources of vocation, discouraging instances of alienation, or some combination of both. In the final part of the course, students will then engage with either their own present work or future work by preparing cover letters and resumes for their future job applications and writing a significant piece of communication (business proposal, conflict resolution, grant application, etc.) within their current or prospective professional career.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to PLS/HDC level students.
Attributes: Adult Learning Seminar, Undergraduate

ENG 150 First Year Seminar (3 credits)
The First-Year Seminar is designed to introduce students to the adventures of learning in a college context. First-Year Seminars focus in depth on a question or topic of disciplinary or interdisciplinary interest. By means of its specific focus, the seminar will explore the thinking, research, and writing practices in a particular field. Discussions based on careful reading of texts, writing assignments, both reflection and research types, and in-class student presentations will be supplemented, as appropriate, with activities including guest lecturers, museum trips, attendance at local cultural events and/or field excursions. Topics vary according to individual instructors.
Attributes: First-Year Seminar, Undergraduate

ENG 170 Special Topics in English (3 credits)
Topics will vary according to the semester in which the class is offered.
Attributes: Undergraduate

ENG 201 Major American Writers (3 credits)
Study of selected works of those writers who have most influenced the continuity and development of our national literature. Among those considered may be Irving, Poe, Emerson, Fuller, Hawthorne, Stowe, Melville, Whitman, Twain, Dickinson, Chopin, Gilman, Frost, Hemingway, Faulkner, and Morrison.
Attributes: American Studies Course, English Area 5 - American Lit, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 202 Global English Literature (3 credits)
This course examines English as a global literary language through works of fiction and film. Students will read works by authors who represent diverse regions of the English-speaking world beyond the United Kingdom (excluding the U.S.) that expand the English language, rethink the present-day legacy of the British Empire, and redefine conceptions of Englishness. Specific course topics and reading lists vary with each course offering.
Attributes: English Area 4 - British/Irish, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Non-Western Studies (GEP), Undergraduate

ENG 203 English Grammar (3 credits)
To prepare current and future English language teachers, this course focuses on various aspects of English grammar, especially those are particularly challenging for ESL/EFL learners. It provides useful background knowledge for English language teachers and preparation that strengthens applications for teaching positions, fellowships, and scholarships. This course is beneficial to Linguistics and TESOL majors/minors who plan to teach English in any context and at any level as well as to students in ENG, COM, EDU and other academic areas where a solid grasp on the linguistic structure of English would be useful. Counts as an ENG elective.
Attributes: Undergraduate

ENG 204 Drama (3 credits)
Critical study of various forms of drama.
Prerequisites: ENG 113
Attributes: GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 205 Cultural Diversity (3 credits)

Attributes: Africana Studies Course, American Studies Course, Diversity Course, English Area 5 - American Lit, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP
ENG 215 Passing Narratives - Black Lit (3 credits)
In W.E.B DuBois’ 1903 foundational text The Souls of Black Folks, he suggests emphatically that the most significant problem for the 20th century (and beyond) will be the color line. But what about those who write across the color line? What do we do with authors who write tales that straddle, obscure, erase that line? In the US, passing has almost exclusively referred to racial passing and more specifically, Black people passing as white people. Passing is understood to occur when a person deemed a member of one racial group performs as and is recognized as a member of a different one. Literally, its meaning, presence and articulation has been far more broad. Some authors have written passing as an act of intentionality, one designed to undermine an oppressive racial classification system that habitually denies Black people basic human, social and political rights. For other authors, passing lacks any such political frame and rather exists as a place to express the complications of an ephemeral identity. This course will examine the range of such literary expressions.
Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111
Attributes: Africana Studies Course, American Studies Course, Diversity Course, English Area 5 - American Lit, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP

ENG 216 Re-Reading the Sixties (3 credits)

Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP

ENG 247 Negotiations, Writing & Conflict (3 credits)
The course involves students in an eclectic writing process that includes legal research, conflict analysis and public speaking. Modeled in part upon the Harvard Negotiation Project’s Getting To Yes methodology, the course also involves newly emerging practices that challenge the notion of argument and encourage exchange between disputing parties. The thesis of the course is that, when individuals embroiled in a conflict begin to hear and understand one another’s stories, they have the option to change and to grow. Although courtrooms and trials will be examined, quite unlike a law course, the format for our class includes dramatic performance, passages from fiction and poetry as well as essays to reveal the common sense that can provide peace between warring interests. The focused goal of this sequence of readings, dramatic exercises and writing is for each student to evolve and to articulate communication strategies for crisis situations.
ENG 268 Fact-checking and Fake News (3 credits)
With daily charges of “fake news” flying off the tongues of politicians and citizens alike, there has never been a better time to learn how to be a fact-checker. In this course, students will dabble in the art of fact-checking and arm themselves with media literacy tools to help them discern fact from fiction. In addition to the required course texts, students will read articles and analyses, listen to podcasts and watch films that will provide fodder for discussions about the fake news debate that occupies the current moment in history.
Attributes: English Journalism Track, Undergraduate

ENG 269 Intro to Mass Communication (3 credits)
This course focuses on the fundamentals of how mass media operate in America, and globally. Students will cover three broad areas: media history, media economics, and the roles of media in society. Specifically, students will delve into the nature of electronic information processes and their impact on the emerging global culture. Students will use the assigned text as a guide to develop an understanding of the complex connections between media and culture. Students will monitor the latest media developments and ongoing coverage of the political, economic and cultural issues affecting our mass media and culture, in order to bridge the gap between media history and contemporary media culture.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, English Journalism Track, Undergraduate

ENG 270 Special Topics in English (3 credits)
Topics will vary according to the semester in which the class is offered.
Attributes: Undergraduate

ENG 301 Middle English Literature (3 credits)
This course will provide an overview of Middle English literature, excluding Chaucer, by beginning with the earliest Middle English texts and ending with Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. We will focus on language, translation, and close reading to start, with the goal of arriving at a broader consideration of the Middle English literary tradition and its role in the creation of English literature as we now know it.
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, English Early Lit, GEP Art/Literature, Medieval, Ren & Reform Studies, Undergraduate

ENG 302 Renaissance Non-dramatic Lit (3 credits)
Was the Renaissance the age of the individual? Was poetry – the dominant literature of the day – a means to power, a force for good or instead a corrupting agent? This course will consider divergent views on the English Renaissance alongside major works by authors such as Sidney, Spenser and Milton.
Prerequisites: PHL 154
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, English Early Lit, English Literary Theory, Ethics Intensive, GEP Art/Literature, Medieval, Ren & Reform Studies, Undergraduate

ENG 303 Renaissance Drama (3 credits)
A study of the drama of Tudor and Jacobean England, excluding Shakespeare. The plays of Marlowe, Jonson, Webster, and Ford and their distinctive dramatic qualities will be emphasized.

Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 309 British/Irish Immigration Lit (3 credits)
Focusing mainly on postwar Britain and Ireland and the changing immigration policies of these countries, this course investigates how economic conditions as well as historical and political events such as 9/11 and/or Brexit have influenced nationalism, gender, race and language at the end of the 20th and the start of 21st century.
Attributes: Diversity Course, English Area 4- British/Irish, English Diversity, Gender Studies Course, GEP Art/Literature, Irish Studies Course, Undergraduate

ENG 310 20th Century Irish Literature (3 credits)
Investigates crucial authors and stages in the development of Irish literature in English from the period of Gregory, Joyce, O’Casey, Synge, and Yeats, through the mid-century period of Beckett, Behan, Bowen, Kavanagh, and O’Brien, to works by late twentieth-century authors (for example, Banville, Boland, Carr, Enright, Friel, and Heaney)
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 311 21st Century Irish Literature (3 credits)
This course will introduce you to the best, the brightest and the loudest voices in today’s Irish literature. We will read a wide variety of authors, among whom you will find more established names such as Martin McDonagh and his wickedly funny and startlingly original drama; Tana French, whose recent success has put Irish crime writing on the world (literary) map; and Ireland’s first fiction laureate, Anne Enright. While exploring questions of nationalism, immigration, gender and identity, we will also study the most recent works of Irish literature, which have shaken and stirred the reading public over the course of the last couple of years.
Prerequisites: ENG 101
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Irish Studies Course, Undergraduate

ENG 328 African American Literature (3 credits)
This thematic survey explores how African American authors write about what it means (and has meant) to be a Black person in the U.S. Exploring poetry, autobiography, drama, short stories, novels, essays, and films, we grapple with the multifaceted experiences of “Blackness” in literary texts produced from the era of slavery to the present. Through our reading we develop an understanding of specific African American literary traditions.
Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111
Attributes: Africana Studies Course, American Studies Course, Diversity Course, English Area 5 - American Lit, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP

ENG 329 Black Women Writers (3 credits)
Linked by history, race, gender, and fate, but arguably little else, how do Black women writing in the U.S. write themselves into the idea of America? This course examines exclusively Black women’s literature in order to answer this question. Covering a minimum of three traditional African American literary periods, students are positioned to question notions of privilege and power driven by the intersectionalities of gender and race.
Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111
Attributes: Africana Studies Course, American Studies Course, Diversity Course, English Area 5 - American Lit, English Diversity, Gender Studies Course, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP

ENG 330 Caribbean Lit in English (3 credits)
This course explores the intersectionalities of racial, ethnic, and linguistic identities within Anglophone and Francophone Caribbean literary traditions. In dialogue these literary traditions complicate a monolithic Caribbean narrative. With careful study of language, class, color, and identity we determine how authors contend with and memorialize French, British, and American imperialisms in the Caribbean. Likely authors include Michelle Cliff, Edwidge Danticat, Merle Hodge, Thomas Glave, George Lamming, and Jamaica Kincaid.
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature

ENG 345 Tutor Prac, Writ Cntr Thry Pr (3 credits)
This course introduces students to writing center history, theories, and practices. Readings include landmark and contemporary texts about writing pedagogy in general and the tutoring of writing specifically. Additionally, students study issues and strategies of relevance to ESL writers for whom English is not their first or home language. Students are introduced to the practices of peer tutoring through class discussions and through observation and tutoring in the University Writing Center. Upon successful completion of this course, they are eligible to be hired in subsequent semesters as writing tutors. Open to students from all majors who are interested in writing and/or the teaching of writing. Permission of instructor required. Does not fulfill GEP GE requirement.
Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP

ENG 346 The Art of The Interview (3 credits)
In this course students will learn and practice interviewing skills. The reason the word art is included in the title of this course is that a good interview is just that: a work of art, one that involves creativity and deep thinking. It also requires curiosity and active listening and the ability to read people. Good interviewers do their homework before they ask questions, but they also know how to think quickly on their feet, crafting new questions, following new trails, depending on where the interview takes them. They know when to push their subjects and when to pull back and how to balance easier questions with the hard ones. They understand the power of both words and silences. If this sounds intimidating, remember: As with any skill, practice is key. The more interviews you do, the more comfortable you will become doing them.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, English Journalism Track, Undergraduate
ENG 350 Advanced News Reporting (3 credits)
This course is an upper-level reporting class that allows students to further enhance their pre-reportorial research, reporting and storytelling skills. Students will learn how to dig up story ideas from beats they develop, crowd source, file FOIA requests, pull police/courts documents, and distill an academic report or scientific study into 300 words for a quick web post, among others. They will also explore and practice using advanced digital reporting tools.
Prerequisites: ENG 261
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, English Journalism Track, Undergraduate

ENG 360 Feature Writing (3 credits)
At its most basic definition, feature writing is journalism that tells a story—generally, the kind of story that you don’t soon forget, that lingers for many moments, or days, or years after you first encounter it. In this course, students study outstanding examples of feature stories and multimedia feature packages. From those examples, they learn how to combine the best reporting practices with the best storytelling practices in order to produce their own powerful features that marry in-depth reporting and research with captivating and creative storytelling skills. Students should have taken ENG 261 or have prior journalism experience before enrolling in this course. Does not fulfill GEP Art/Lit requirement.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, English Journalism Track, Undergraduate

ENG 362 Photojournalism (3 credits)
This is an introductory course in photojournalism presented in a multimedia context. Students will be required to have access to either point-and-shoot cameras or (ideally) DSLR camera kits. The course will be taught as a hands-on workshop. Instruction will progress from basic camera operation and single image assignments to more comprehensive visual storytelling. Does not fulfill GEP Art/Lit requirement.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, English Journalism Track, Undergraduate

ENG 363 Sports Journalism (3 credits)
This hands-on, multimedia course covers all aspects of current sports journalism, from reporting and telling stories in print and broadcast media as well as in blogs, podcasts and social media. In addition to learning how to break news across multiple platforms, students will practice the kind of in-depth reporting and compelling storytelling that leads to profiles and full-length features. Students should have taken ENG 261 or have prior journalism experience before enrolling in this course. Does not fulfill GEP Art/Lit requirement.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, English Journalism Track, Undergraduate

ENG 364 Stunt Journalism (3 credits)
In 1887, when journalist Nellie Bly feigned madness in order to get herself locked up in the Women's Lunatic Asylum on Blackwell's Island in New York, stunt journalism wasn’t yet a brand. But the kind of immersive, investigative journalism that Bly did would soon become a way for journalists and newspapers to grab headlines, increase circulation and even affect real social change. Nowadays, serious stunt journalism is more commonly referred to as “immersion journalism” while some of the less serious attempts are questionably journalism at all. No matter what you call it, stunt journalism differs from traditional journalism in this significant way. The journalist deliberately becomes a part of the story—often in disguise—to tell it. In addition to required readings, students will produce significant works of stunt journalism that, at least on a smaller scale, mirror the challenges of the stunt journalist.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, English Journalism Track, Undergraduate

ENG 365 Multimedia Journalism (3 credits)
Multimedia journalism is a foundational course in audio-visual storytelling. The course will provide an overview of the language and theories of audio-visual communication, and introduce skills to produce news narratives for radio, television, and online news reporting. In this course students will learn the vocabulary of multimedia production and editing, use audio-visual production techniques to produce multimedia stories, and learn methods to critically evaluate audio-visual narratives.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, English Journalism Track, Undergraduate

ENG 370 Independent Study Jr. Level (3 credits)
The chief purpose of the junior-level independent study project is for the student to acquire knowledge in a particular area of literature (reading and research project) or to produce a substantial piece of writing, either creative or discursive (writing project). For the reading and research project, the student will develop a course of study with the project director that may utilize audiovisual as well as printed material. In addition to a reading program, the student will write a substantial paper that develops from that reading program; the paper should use primary texts and have a textual perspective—historical, critical, aesthetic, or mythic. For the writing project, the student will develop a program of reading and writing with the project director. Minimum GPA of 3.0 (or cumulative average of 3.4 or higher for courses in the major field).
Attributes: GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 377 Inside-Out (3 credits)
This class offers a unique opportunity to have meaningful discussions about a range of topics from inside a correctional facility. Inside-Out classes bring together students from Saint Joseph's University and adult students who are incarcerated to learn about and discuss topics such as the causes of crime, racism, literature, philosophy, and restorative justice. Through the readings and dialogue, inside and outside students will be able to integrate their theoretical knowledge with lived experiences. It is through this exchange that we hope to critically analyze and challenge the current system in the U.S. that has resulted in a higher incarceration rate than other similar countries.
Attributes: Faith Justice Course, Justice Ethics and the Law , Service Learning Course, Undergraduate

ENG 383 Seminar in Rhetorical Theory (3 credits)
Focused examination of some key factors in rhetoric over the ages: for example, invention strategies, the ethics of writing, methods of delivery.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, English Literary Theory, Undergraduate

ENG 384 The Essay (3 credits)
A comprehensive study of the essay form through time, with special concern for identifying forces of change upon the style and function of the essay within selected cultural contexts.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 401 Chaucer & the Medieval World (3 credits)
An examination of the development of various medieval narrative forms, including the romance, and the climax of their development in the poetry of Geoffrey Chaucer. The major historical focus will be on work written in England from 1300 to 1485; there will be some continental material included.
Attributes: English Area 4 - British/Irish, English Early Lit, GEP Art/Literature, Medieval, Ren & Reform Studies, Undergraduate
ENG 402 Shakespeare, Gender, Gerontology (3 credits)
This course considers gender, sexual identity and old age (separately and together) in Shakespeare’s plays. Critical readings will accompany a rotating selection of plays such as Twelfth Night, All’s Well that Ends Well, Macbeth, Hamlet, 1-2 Henry IV, Richard II, King Lear, Coriolanus, The Taming of the Shrew, and Pericles.
Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111
Attributes: English Area 3 - Shakespeare, English Area 4 - British/Irish, English Early Lit, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Medieval, Ren & Reform Studies, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP

ENG 403 Shakespeare and Race (3 credits)
This course considers race in the Renaissance through six of Shakespeare’s plays, five of which include people of color: Cleopatra and the Egyptians at her court in Antony and Cleopatra; Aaron in Titus Andronicus; the Prince of Morocco (and, arguably, Shylock) in The Merchant of Venice; Othello in Othello; and Caliban in The Tempest. A sixth play, Henry V, helps us consider additional ways in which Shakespearean conceptions of both race and diversity may vary from our own.
Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111
Attributes: English Area 3 - Shakespeare, English Area 4 - British/Irish, English Early Lit, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Medieval, Ren & Reform Studies, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP

ENG 404 Eng, Irish, Anglophone Authors (3 credits)
An in-depth study of one to two significant authors of a particular period, the choice to be made by the instructor.
Prerequisites: ENG 101 or ENG 111
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 405 Early Tudor Gender Power & Lit (3 credits)
Anne Boleyn was the most consequential queen in English history. To marry her, Henry VIII created the Church of England and forced his subjects to swear oaths confirming his control over it and their own allegiance to Anne and her heirs. Those who refused – including Thomas More – faced imprisonment and death. Anne reigned barely a thousand days before her execution for adultery. This course is about Anne, Henry VIII, the politics of their world and the literature by and about their court – including the poetry kept and commented upon by Anne’s female friends and relatives.
Prerequisites: (ENG 101 or ENG 111) and PHL 154
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, English Early Lit, English Diversity, Ethics Intensive, GEP Art/Literature, Justice Ethics and the Law, Medieval, Ren & Reform Studies, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP

ENG 406 Race in the Middle Ages (3 credits)
The medieval period is thought of as a time before concepts of race emerged – before the horrors of the Atlantic slave trade, before European colonialism, before scientific racism. It continues to be used to justify the modern phenomena of racialized nationalism and ideologies of whiteness. This course examines some of the stories, images, ideas, and institutions of medieval England. We will ask how race aids our thinking about the way human difference is articulated and how it operated in the Middle Ages. Some readings will be in Middle English; others will be modern English translation. No previous experience with medieval literature is expected.
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, English Early Lit, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Medieval, Ren & Reform Studies, Undergraduate

ENG 407 20th/21st Cent. British Novel (3 credits)
Focusing on the study of major developments in British fiction from World War I to Brexit, this course will analyze issues of globalization and Britain’s role in the globalized world. Focusing on issues of nation and nationality, of Britishness and history, the course will investigate the state of the nation in what has been seen as a far-reaching identity crisis and/or a massive inferiority complex. The authors may include Woolf, Forster, Lawrence, and, depending on the instructor, also Fowles, Spark, Ishiguro, Ali Smith and others.
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, GEP Art/Literature, Globalization Course, Undergraduate

ENG 408 Art Ethics Irish Troubles Lit (3 credits)
This course explores how various Irish (and English) novelists and short-story writers have depicted in fiction “the Troubles”—a protracted period of politically-motivated violence in Northern Ireland, Great Britain, and the Republic of Ireland, which began in the late 1960s and has not fully ended today. By identifying the stories’ aesthetic and ethical dimensions and their social and political contexts, we shall examine both the representation of violence and the potential violence of representation. Key questions include: What is the role of the artist in representing politically motivated and other types of violence? Should artists offer solutions or only pose problems? What are the aesthetic and ethical stakes of making art out of atrocity?
Prerequisites: PHL 154
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, Ethics Intensive, GEP Art/Literature, Irish Studies Course, Undergraduate

ENG 410 Irish Gothic Fiction (3 credits)
Interrogating issues of genre and historical context, this course traces the evolution of Irish gothic and ghost stories from the early nineteenth century to the present.
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, English Literary Theory, GEP Art/Literature, Irish Studies Course, Undergraduate

ENG 411 Black British Literature (3 credits)
This course focuses on narrative and criticism by Black British writers since the 1948 arrival of the Empire Windrush. We examine the way “Blackness” in Britain has been called upon to both unite and exclude while exploring the contested perception that Black experience in Britain should be examined solely in terms of race and identity. Likely authors include: Sam Selvon, Kwame Kwei-Armah, Jackie Kay, Andrea Levy, Caryl Phillips, and Zadie Smith.
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 414 Modern and Contemporary Epic (3 credits)
This course examines the attempts of four long novels from the twentieth and twenty-first centuries to recapture the epic tradition in the form of the modern novel: the modernist epic, the postcolonial epic, the postimperial epic, and the epic of globalization. During the semester, we will discuss how modern and contemporary authors depict how individuals can imagine connections and responsibilities to one another while undergoing rapidly changing notions of community, national belonging, and global citizenship.
Attributes: English Area 4- British/Irish, English Diversity, Ethics Intensive, GEP Art/Literature, Globalization Course, Undergraduate
ENG 415 Postcolonial Studies (3 credits)
An examination of diverse literary texts, films and theoretical essays that engage the idea of “post colonialism,” the circumstances and effects of one nation having sovereign power over another. We will emphasize works with a relationship to the British Empire (e.g., Forster, Conrad, Rushdie, Collins, Dickens, Joyce, Winterson), but we will not be limited to this particular historical context.
Attributes: Africana Studies Course, Asian Studies Course, English Area 4-British/Irish, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Globalization Course, Undergraduate

ENG 416 Rebellious Women Writers (3 credits)
This course explores how British and American women of the late seventeenth to early twentieth centuries used writing to rebel against the status quo. We will examine both the historical circumstances in which women found themselves and the literary production that resulted. We will examine a wide variety of women’s texts—narrative fictions, poetry, political polemics, conduct books, letters, autobiographies, social theories, sermons, and protest leaflets—and we will discuss the effects of these different responses to women’s plight. We will look closely at the influences that British and American writers exerted upon one another.
Attributes: American Studies Course, Diversity Course, English Area 4-British/Irish, English Area 5 - American Lit, English Early Lit, English Diversity, Gender Studies Course, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 417 Post-Soul Black Literature (3 credits)
Many believed that the 1964 Civil Rights Act would usher in a radically different era of freedom and opportunity for all Black Americans, ultimately improving their quotidian experiences with racism. This has not proved true. In this course, we will approach the study of Black literature by understanding that, in some ways, life informs art and/or the artists who create it. We will read literature and theory written after the signing of the Civil Rights Act identifying common themes, styles, imagery and artistic strategies emerging from what literary critic Mark Anthony Neal has termed the “post-soul imagination”. How are African American authors articulating the concepts of freedom and citizenship as raced and gendered subjects into the 21st century? Likely authors may include: Octavia Butler, Brittney Cooper, Michelle Elam, Percival Everett, Victor LaValle, and Kiese Laymon.
Prerequisites: (ENG 101 or ENG 111)
Attributes: American Studies Course, Diversity Course, English Area 5 - American Lit, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate, Writing Intensive Course- GEP

ENG 432 Theater Performance Practicum (3 credits)
Rehearsal and performance of a campus production (produced by the Cap and Bells Dramatic Society and directed by a faculty director) with the student in the role of actor or stage manager. Comprehensive study of the rehearsal and performance processes which culminates in the writing of a final research paper of ten pages in length. In order to register for this course, the production must be the third campus production in which the student has served as cast member or stage manager. Instructor approval required.
Attributes: English Theatre/Drama, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 433 Environmental Justice (3 credits)
In an era of depleted natural resources and climate change, environmental justice explores creative nonfiction, memoir, fiction, and poetry that addresses climate change and its impact on communities of color and impoverished communities in the U.S. and elsewhere. We also consider stories about how to tell stories about climate change and global warming that influence policy makers and the public. We use the lens of race, class, and gender to consider how environmental writing works.
Attributes: Diversity Course, English Area 1 - Writing, English Diversity, GEP Art/Literature, Justice Ethics and the Law, Undergraduate

ENG 441 Literacy as a Social Practice (3 credits)
An investigation of literacy as a social practice, using composition theory, ethnography, fiction, autobiography, and popular culture to define literacy and ask questions about it. With concern for the defining forces of race, class, and gender, the course explores different uses of literacy and considers the concept of a literacy "crisis." Students will compose narratives of their own literacy practices and pursue independent research on some aspect of literacy and its applications to schools, society, and quality of life. Does not fulfill GEP Art/Lit requirement.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, Undergraduate

ENG 442 Race, Class, and Gender (3 credits)
We investigate "identity" as an intersectional construct. Theories of whiteness and racial identity, gender and sexuality, and social class are presented through reading and writing in poetry, memoir, fiction, and film. Course can include readings on disability, mental health diagnoses, and trans identities. Drafts of writing will be shared with classmates in large and small workshops.

A writing course designed to explore alternative and experimental genres that combat sexism and do social and political work, with particular focus on narratives developed to challenge dominant cultural structures and practices.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, GEP Art/Literature, Undergraduate

ENG 446 Writing the Grant Proposal (3 credits)
This course introduces students to the grant-making process from initial research to the submission of a final proposal. Students will first work together to consult for a single non-profit, while learning about the components of a strong grant proposal and the grant-making process overall. Then, each student will be paired with a local nonprofit organization, as volunteer consultants for that organization. Students will work with their nonprofit organization to identify a new or existing project that needs funding. They will then take what they learn in class about the grant-making process and apply it to meet the needs of their nonprofit "client," with the ultimate goal of producing a complete grant proposal that can be submitted to funders.
Attributes: English Area 1 - Writing, Undergraduate

ENG 449 Travel Writing Abroad (3 credits)
In this study abroad course, you will use travel as a lens through which to explore the elements of creative nonfiction in general and travel writing in particular. Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 600 Poetry Today (3 credits)
Exploration of the current poetry scene, particularly in America, reading collections from a wide variety of poetic schools and from the theoretical positions that inform the poems. Movements covered may include feminist and identity poetics, the New York School, poetry of witness, neo-confessional, Language Poetry, and the New Formalism. Use of imitation to experiment with difference poetic stances and styles.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 612 Biography (3 credits)
This course will focus on reading and critiquing a number of important biographies, in order to see how various professional biographers have approached their task. Concomitantly, each student will be asked to choose a contemporary subject worthy of a biography (not a relative), who lives within a 50-mile radius of Philadelphia. Students will search out publications that often include biographical essays/profiles, gather detailed information about their subjects from various sources they determine to be important, and do the necessary interviews, with the aim of writing a biographical essay/profile.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 614 The Short Story (3 credits)
This course focuses on reading and writing short stories with a particular focus on single-author contemporary and classic short story collections and their significance. Authors that may be considered include Atwood, Diaz, Fitzgerald, Hurston, Lahiri, Munro, Millhauser, Poe, and Twain.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 615 Road to Revolution in 1960s (3 credits)
A study of the American cultural scene during the 1960s including how racial discrimination, gender discrimination, sexual repression and anti-war activism appeared in writing and culture. Writers may include: Jack Kerouac, Nikki Giovanni, Eldridge Cleaver, Kurt Vonnegut, Joseph Heller, Betty Freidan, and some Beat poets. Films were also consequential both in propelling and in reflecting revolutionary changes in American life through the 1960s. Several key films that may be considered include In the Heat of the Night, Bonnie and Clyde, The Graduate, Easy Rider.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.
ENG 616 Writing and Inciting (3 credits)
This course will explore how Irish novelists and short-story writers have represented "the Troubles"—a protracted period of politically motivated violence in Northern Ireland, Great Britain, and the Republic of Ireland, which began in the late 1960s and has not fully ended today. Key questions include the following: What is the role of the artist in representing politically motivated and other types of violence? Should artists offer solutions or only pose problems? What are the moral and aesthetical stakes involved in making art out of atrocity? How might studying the fiction of the Northern Irish "Troubles" provide students in the M.A. in Writing Studies with thematic, technical and ethical insights for their own artistic investigations of the many forms of violence within their own societies?
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 617 Writing and the Other Arts (3 credits)
Study of relationship between the work of writers and that produced by other kinds of creative people (in music, in architecture, in painting and drawing, in film) in order to get a full sense of any particular cultural moment (the Renaissance, the Age of Enlightenment, the Roaring 20's, the Rebellious 60's).
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 619 Reading & Writing Y.A. Novels (3 credits)
In this course we immerse ourselves in a range of contemporary literary texts written for, read by, assigned to, or kept from young adults (ages 12-18). Our goals will be to become both more familiar with the wide variety of texts geared toward adolescents and more attuned to our own experiences as readers and writers of young adult literature. At the same time, we will be attempting to think through the multiple ways in which adults (particularly parents and teachers) and adolescent readers interact with these texts and with each other.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 620 Special Topics in Lit/Culture (3 credits)
This course will consider a particular aspect of literature and culture relevant to contemporary writers. Content will vary according to the instructor. Course can be repeated when content varies.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 621 Horror in Literature & Film (3 credits)
When the novel came into being in the middle of the eighteenth century, its most popular genre was the Gothic—the novel of horror. In fact, the modern era—the era of science, reason, and democracy—has been obsessed with terror, fear, and the unknown since its very inception. What is it about horror fiction that appeals to modern culture? Beginning with one of the earliest Gothic horror novels, the course will trace out a literary, philosophical, and filmic history. Each unit of the course will explore how a different psychological/cultural concept of terror plays out in an aesthetic context.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 630 Composition Theory (3 credits)
Exploration of theories of composition, with particular emphasis on contributions to the field in the past half century.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 635 The Writing Teacher Writing (3 credits)
Consideration of the writing that teachers can do in order to develop their approach to the teaching of writing.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 636 Writing & Empowerment (3 credits)
In this course students will explore how writing can be used as a tool, a method, and a means of empowerment. They will consider how the ability to tell one's story can be empowering and what the risks of telling that story are. They will also consider what an author might choose to leave out of the telling of a particular tale. Finally, students will research stories of empowerment and write their own stories of empowerment. Each student will complete two projects in different genres including fiction, nonfiction, pedagogy, poetry, and academic prose.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 640 Experiments in Narrative (3 credits)
Through examination of fictional and nonfiction narratives and narrative theories, this course considers such issues as the shift from oral to print to hypertext narratives, linear and nonlinear structure, writing "taboo" subjects, and the impact of social-cultural-historical circumstances upon narrative form and function. Content varies with instructor.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.
ENG 646 Multimedia Writing Workshop (3 credits)
A writer's work can be incredibly varied and provide a multitude of challenges and opportunities for creativity. Multimedia writers may create a script for a storyboard developed by a graphic artist. They may also create the text for Twitter, Facebook, and Instagram posts. They might write copy for a news broadcast, or their own blog. The goal of this intensive writing workshop is to build a writing portfolio and introduce the many facets of multimedia writing while encouraging each student to find their own method, approach, and voice within the structures of each multimedia platform. Students will be guided in exploring, discovering, and strengthening their voices and writing styles with the goal of enhancing and expanding their analytical and creative communication skills, and preparing them for real world jobs.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 665 Memoir (3 credits)
Consideration of the writing that comes directly from life experience and development of an autobiographical narrative that reflects past achievements in this genre. Can satisfy Area I.

Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 676 Writing for Publication (3 credits)
Successful freelance publishing begins with an awareness of what editors and their readers want. It demands knowledge of the manuscript market and familiarity with the requirements of specific publications: subject, length, organization, style. Unpublished writers can perfect their skills by analysis and imitation of authors who already write for the publications in which learners wish to appear. The course requires that assignments be composed—from the beginning—for specific publications and that completed work will be submitted for publication. Content can be fiction, nonfiction, or journalism and varies with the instructor. Can be repeated with the permission of the graduate director.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 677 Case Study: Public Relations (3 credits)
Comparative analysis of several public relations campaigns, with consideration of the rhetorical principles involved in the effort to sway public opinion.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 678 Case Study: Magazine Publishing (3 credits)
Exploration of magazine publishing, and the study of several magazines—their histories and editorial styles—with consideration for changing demographics and the practical considerations of achieving success in the magazine market. Consideration of the state of magazine publishing in both print and the web, and the development of articles from pitch to publication.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.
ENG 679 Special Topics in Journalism (3 credits)
Exploration of a particular topic in journalism. May include sports journalism, literary journalism, or other topics as determined by the instructor.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 680 Writing for Nonprofits (3 credits)
This course will teach you the basics of how to write for a nonprofit organization, and how to tailor your message and style to various audiences. Focusing primarily on grant writing, you will learn the basics of how to ask for money from organizations in writing and how to navigate the grant-making process from the initial research to the submission of the final proposal. You will also practice writing other important pieces for any nonprofit, like appeal letters, blog posts, social media outreach, performance reports, and more. Through hands-on practice with real Philadelphia-area nonprofits, you’ll learn how to write for the different audiences a nonprofit organization needs to reach. While this course is geared towards the writing skills suited to nonprofit organizations, many of these skills are also transferrable to writing at other kinds of professional organizations.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 681 Writers at Work (3 credits)
This course is designed to set your professional life as a writer in motion. Over the course of 15 weeks, you’ll meet a series of working writers from around Philadelphia who will visit our class. During these visits, you’ll have the opportunity to network with professional writers and learn about possible career paths, from public relations to publishing. Each writer’s visit will tie into a different writing assignment so that you can begin building a portfolio of professional work (likely assignments will include: a press release, a review, a book proposal, an edited manuscript, plus a professional resume and bio.) At the end, you’ll develop an online portfolio that you can use as a calling card.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 682 New Media (3 credits)
Exploration of new communications media as the hypertext world expands and technology continues to make possible increased broadcast media opportunities.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 683 Editing Practicum (3 credits)
Assignment to a specific, actual editing project, with expectation that the student will engage in several editorial functions in preparing manuscripts for publication.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 684 Health Writing (3 credits)
Are pharmaceutical makers influencing scientific research? What emerging infectious disease is likely to be the next big scare? What are the pros and cons of universal healthcare? Is chocolate really good for the heart? This course will teach students how to report and write on some of the pressing health issues of the day and encourage them to become more discerning consumers of medical news. Students will learn how to analyze research studies, conduct interviews of doctors, scientists and patients, and translate findings into lively and informative stories for the lay reader. The course will explore the connection between the environment and disease and examine trends in medicine as technology advances and funding shrinks. Students will get the latest information from guest speakers who are leaders in the fields of medical research, public relations and the media. This course will help prepare students for a career in health-related writing or sharpen their communication skills for whatever field they are pursuing.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 770 Directed Readings (3 credits)
ENG 771 Directed Research (3 credits)
ENG 772 Directed Writing (3 credits)
ENG 773 Directed Fieldwork (3 credits)
ENG 791 Graduate Internship (3 credits)
Students have workplace internship assignments in areas of career interest that involve writing (research, editing, writing). A component of the course will be research in the internship field, in addition to writing of various kinds about the actual internship activity, some of it done with an eye to publication. Each placement involves approximately 200 hours of work over the course of the internship, a letter from a supervisor upon completion of the internship, and a journal documenting the work of the internship.
Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.
ENG 793 Thesis Project I (3,6 credits)
The thesis project can involve either an analytical study in some area covered by the program or a collection of original creative material. Each project will have a faculty director, selected by the student in consultation with the Writing Studies Program Director. For a project to be completed in one registration period, register for ENG 793 and ENG 794, 3 credits each, for a total of 6 credits. For a project to be completed in two separate registration periods, register first for ENG 793 for 3 credits, then later, for ENG 794 for the remaining 3 credits. It is recommended that each project also be read by a second reader, who will be chosen by the student and thesis director, and approved by the graduate director. At the completion of the thesis project, students will make a formal presentation of it in one of three ways: (1) A public reading of a selected portion of the project (2) A formal defense whereby the thesis will be explained and questions about it entertained (3) A public reading coupled with a formal defense. The method of public presentation would be agreed upon by the student and the thesis director. The English Department will host opportunities for public readings two times a year (in December and May) close to expected completion of degree requirements and the thesis project. Once complete, thesis projects will receive a P (pass). In progress thesis projects will be graded as Incomplete. Nota Bene: The Writing Studies diploma will not be conferred until the candidate has successfully completed the above steps, as well as submitted the thesis project in the correct format for binding. Details about the procedure for binding the thesis can be found on the Writing Studies website.

Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to students with a major, minor, or concentration in Writing Studies. Enrollment is limited to Graduate level students.

ENG 794 Thesis Project II (3 credits)
